

The Weather
Montgomery: Cloudy to partly cloudy and scattered cool...

The Montgomery Advertiser

SHOP FROM GIFT-SPOTTER
SEND ANSWERS FOR OUTINGS...

12th Year—No. 291

Montgomery, Ala., Tuesday Morning, December 6, 1955

26 Pages

Price 5 Cents

5,000 At Meeting Outline Boycott; Bullet Clips Bus

By JOE AZBELL
Advertiser City Editor
An estimated 5,000 hymn-singing Negroes packed the Holt Street Baptist Church...

Regents Give Georgia Tech 'Green Light'

ATLANTA, Dec. 5.—Georgia Board of Regents today rejected Gov. Marvin Griffin's move to have Georgia Tech's football team pulled from the Sugar Bowl on a racial issue...

At the same time, it closed the door on any further bus boycotts played in the South...

At the same time, it closed the door on any further bus boycotts played in the South...

At the same time, it closed the door on any further bus boycotts played in the South...

At the same time, it closed the door on any further bus boycotts played in the South...

At the same time, it closed the door on any further bus boycotts played in the South...

At the same time, it closed the door on any further bus boycotts played in the South...

At the same time, it closed the door on any further bus boycotts played in the South...

At the same time, it closed the door on any further bus boycotts played in the South...

At the same time, it closed the door on any further bus boycotts played in the South...

NEGROES TO CONTINUE BOYCOTT

An estimated crowd of 5,000 Negroes gathered around a resolution last night at the Holt Street Baptist Church to continue a boycott against the Montgomery City Lines, Inc. until the bus situation is settled to the satisfaction of its patrons.

An estimated crowd of 5,000 Negroes gathered around a resolution last night at the Holt Street Baptist Church to continue a boycott against the Montgomery City Lines, Inc. until the bus situation is settled to the satisfaction of its patrons.

An estimated crowd of 5,000 Negroes gathered around a resolution last night at the Holt Street Baptist Church to continue a boycott against the Montgomery City Lines, Inc. until the bus situation is settled to the satisfaction of its patrons.

An estimated crowd of 5,000 Negroes gathered around a resolution last night at the Holt Street Baptist Church to continue a boycott against the Montgomery City Lines, Inc. until the bus situation is settled to the satisfaction of its patrons.

An estimated crowd of 5,000 Negroes gathered around a resolution last night at the Holt Street Baptist Church to continue a boycott against the Montgomery City Lines, Inc. until the bus situation is settled to the satisfaction of its patrons.

An estimated crowd of 5,000 Negroes gathered around a resolution last night at the Holt Street Baptist Church to continue a boycott against the Montgomery City Lines, Inc. until the bus situation is settled to the satisfaction of its patrons.

An estimated crowd of 5,000 Negroes gathered around a resolution last night at the Holt Street Baptist Church to continue a boycott against the Montgomery City Lines, Inc. until the bus situation is settled to the satisfaction of its patrons.

An estimated crowd of 5,000 Negroes gathered around a resolution last night at the Holt Street Baptist Church to continue a boycott against the Montgomery City Lines, Inc. until the bus situation is settled to the satisfaction of its patrons.

An estimated crowd of 5,000 Negroes gathered around a resolution last night at the Holt Street Baptist Church to continue a boycott against the Montgomery City Lines, Inc. until the bus situation is settled to the satisfaction of its patrons.

An estimated crowd of 5,000 Negroes gathered around a resolution last night at the Holt Street Baptist Church to continue a boycott against the Montgomery City Lines, Inc. until the bus situation is settled to the satisfaction of its patrons.

An estimated crowd of 5,000 Negroes gathered around a resolution last night at the Holt Street Baptist Church to continue a boycott against the Montgomery City Lines, Inc. until the bus situation is settled to the satisfaction of its patrons.

An estimated crowd of 5,000 Negroes gathered around a resolution last night at the Holt Street Baptist Church to continue a boycott against the Montgomery City Lines, Inc. until the bus situation is settled to the satisfaction of its patrons.

Voters To Tackle Voting-Sized Ballot State Today

Education Aid Top Two Items To Face Test

By BOB INGRAM
Alabama voters make their decision today on 23 proposed amendments to the state Constitution...

Alabama voters make their decision today on 23 proposed amendments to the state Constitution...

Alabama voters make their decision today on 23 proposed amendments to the state Constitution...

Alabama voters make their decision today on 23 proposed amendments to the state Constitution...

Alabama voters make their decision today on 23 proposed amendments to the state Constitution...

Alabama voters make their decision today on 23 proposed amendments to the state Constitution...

Alabama voters make their decision today on 23 proposed amendments to the state Constitution...

Alabama voters make their decision today on 23 proposed amendments to the state Constitution...

Alabama voters make their decision today on 23 proposed amendments to the state Constitution...

Alabama voters make their decision today on 23 proposed amendments to the state Constitution...

Alabama voters make their decision today on 23 proposed amendments to the state Constitution...

Alabama voters make their decision today on 23 proposed amendments to the state Constitution...

Alabama voters make their decision today on 23 proposed amendments to the state Constitution...

Remember we are Fighting For Justice Do Not Ride A Bus Today

NEGRO BOYCOTT PESTER
This is one of the posters which city policemen yesterday removed from bus stops as Negroes staged a boycott against the Montgomery City Lines over arrest of a Negro woman on a transportation segregation charge.

AT COURTHOUSE TONIGHT
Safeguards Among Neighbors
Topic Of Fifth Legal Forum
Legal safeguards insuring legal relationships among neighbors...